

Leave XM Radio alone! XM radio is a subscriber service that you must want to have, it's not free airway. I think that if you wish to not allow satellite radio from offering traffic news and the likes, than ban it from Direct TV, The Dish, and all other "Paid" for service providers. This tells me that your agency has too much time on its hands or you are a puppet for big lobbying efforts and the NAB. With the recent crack down on obscenity and raunchy radio, people are looking for another way to get unabridged service. Now you want to go after it, you should spend your time on other issues like collecting fines from shock jocks and Clear Channel. You have shown that inside the beltway there is no resemblance of common sense and good judgment, go back to the private sector, you'll be there soon enough!
